

When the Giant Squids Come // Brooke Lunderville

capo 2

I met my clone today in San Jose
She wasn't hard to recognize;
I knew as soon as we locked eyes
And it was proved when our lips moved
We spoke as with one voice
About the day when we'll rejoice
On the day

When the giant squids come and their tentacles enfold us as their giant eyes behold us
When the giant squids come and take us all beneath the waves to be their wretched human slaves
When the giant squids come

Who is my evil twin? I'll clue you in.
She has a favourite isotope
She dresses like a cantaloupe
She scribbles madly while she sweetly smiles
She's writing your obituary
We're the archyteenthis fairies
And we can't wait for

When the giant squids come ...

We know we'll love the things the squids will bring Because we love to snuggle snakes and the sound a bonesaw makes We've got our matching orange wetsuit set We'll understand if you are scared
But honey, if you're not prepared You'd better get kraken
