

Miles' Song // Brooke Lunderville

TTTO: Mal's Song by Michelle Dockrey, which has chorus from "Ballad of Serenity" by Joss Whedon

There's a twisted count who wants the emperor's throne	D C
There's a bitter brother left all alone	F Am Dm
When the thirst for power and vengeance cross	F C
The regent's justice has a terrible cost	F Am Dm
A crossbow shot, a spray of broken glass	D C
A bedroom fills with Soltoxin gas	F Am Dm
There'll be no salvation from the medical crew	F C
The antidote gas is a poison too	F Am Dm

Breathe deep, Dear Captain, close your eyes	F Am Dm
It's cripple our son or give up and die	F Am Dm

chorus:

Take my bones, take my height	D C
Tell me I can never fight	G D A
I don't care, I'm still Vor	F C
You can't tell me I'm too short	G D A
Take me out in to the black	D C
I'll be an admiral when I come back	G D A
You can keep me from the academy	F C
But you can't take my Dendarii	G D A
You can't take my fleet from me	F C D

As a full-grown man I stand four foot nine
My bones break at the lightest touch
I'm loyal and brave, I have a brilliant mind
But if your body's not whole that's not enough
I went to Beta at my mother's behest
When the academy passed me by
But I can't live long without some kind of quest
Now I've a ship, a crew, and a mission to fly

My new life begins with this wormhole trip
I've staked my word on this RG-ship

Things turned crazy fast on the other side
I've conquered a fleet and my sergeant's died
Now I'm fighting and winning in a foreign war
A commander who's never taken orders before
We had finally won when the news came 'round
Some fool's trying to take my father down
I got back in time and the conspiracy's beat
But now what do I do with this illegal fleet

I can't give them up, I can't break my vow
So they're the Emperor's Own Dendarii now