

Written in Blood // Brooke Lunderville

I never thought I'd see you blush
You were the river that would never flood
But now your secret's out, it's on your face
Written in blood, written in blood

I was supposed to never know
I understand, I've always understood
The question isn't do I feel the same
It's whether I should, whether I should

How did the talking get so straight
It was supposed to stay one big joke
Cover up your burning heart
With a blanket of smoke, a blanket of smoke

I never thought I'd see you blush
You were the river that would never flood
But now your secret's out, it's on your face
Written in blood, written in blood
